Turf Talk August 26

Last week was a breaking point for me. Not so much a point of resignation but more like telling myself, 'self?', sometimes you just have to laugh.

This particular day indeed was a comedy of errors. Within the time frame of less than an hour, three different incidents, but all connected, took place. I shook my head and paced about in frustration. As I walked, I came upon one of the stations where the cart traffic posts are placed. Inside was a beetle about one inch in length and it was pacing around the edge of the cut pipe like, God forgive me, a blind person looking for a doorway to get out. Of course, I gently put my hand down there and 'rescued' him. Upon revealing my story to a member of the crew, they told me how they watched a toad repeatedly try to jump over a timber lined against the cart path. Time and time again the toad jumped only to continue coming up short and hitting the timber with it's nose. Relentless, persistently head butting the 'wall'. Why? Yeah, I know I'm only talking about a beetle and a toad, but isn't it also human nature? Humans are wired to believe that persistence will pay off.

So, you ask what is the moral of the story? I'm just reminded of a conversation in a scene from the movie Grumpier Old Men. "No there ain't no moral, I just like that story". But then sometimes you just have to laugh.

No Fishing! While we understand the ponds are very attractive to those that like to fish, it is very dangerous to fish on a golf course. No Fishing is allowed and if you see anyone fishing, please report it to the Pro Shop. The Golf Course, Lee's Hill, accepts no liability to those that get injured while fishing on the golf course
