

What is a “No Show” and what are the effects?

A “No Show” is when a tee time reservation is made at a golf course and all or a portion of these golfers fail to show up for their reserved tee time. Typically a course would like the golfer who made the reservation to contact the golf course at a minimum of 24-hours prior to their reserved tee time to cancel the entire tee time reservation or downsize the number of golfers playing in the group. If golfers do this, it enables the golf course an opportunity to have other golfers’ reserve the tee time, which has two advantages. First, the golf course is able to generate the expected revenue for that tee time slot, and secondly it allows other golfers the opportunity to play as opposed to the tee time going empty.

Our primary goal, beyond a great experience for golfers, is to keep greens fees as affordable as possible. “No Show” tee times are one of the largest contributors for the rise in green fees. Golf courses rely on maximizing all of the tee times in their inventory. When times go unused without the opportunity to sell them, it negatively affects the financial performance of the course.

We understand that situations occur and sometimes tee time reservations must be cancelled. If you are unable to make your tee time, we simply ask that you give us a call to cancel. The more notice you give us, the better chance we have in putting other golfers in that slot and in turn keeping golf as affordable as possible.

We look forward to seeing you on the course.
