Treviso Bay Tennis

A closely fought tennis match is more than a physical battle. It is a struggle of wills, mental strength and character. It is a pervasive personal and emotional contest in which you use every means you have, both physical and mental, to break down your opponent's mind (while keeping your own intact and functional).

Establishing dominance is one way to help break down an opponent. What is meant by "dominance"? It is the inferior feeling that lesser players get when they face better players, and it makes them play worse. It is not limited to tennis. In chess, for example, Bobby Fischer, who was arguably the best of all time, had a debilitating effect on his opponents known as "Fischer fear." One of his great rivals, Boris Spassky, was once quoted as saying, "When you play Bobby, it is not a question of whether you win or lose. It is a question of whether you survive." Wow!

This "superstar effect" was identified by Jennifer Brown at Northwestern University in a study on Tiger Woods, who was far and away the dominant golfer on the tour at the time of the study. She looked at golf because, unlike tennis, it is a sport where one player cannot physically influence another's performance directly. The effects can only be mental.

In tennis one player can affect another's performance both physically and mentally. In addition to their games, high ranking or successful players have a mental way of making their opponents feel weak and ineffectual.

In his prime, Roger Federer's simple presence across the net was intimidating. Federer did not just overpower opponents physically -- he dominated them mentally. And as a consequence, they missed shots against him that they routinely made against other people. They were more likely than normal to become nervous against him or to become discouraged when they got behind.

This psychological weaponry was a handy addition to his arsenal of shots when it came to conserving energy while winning lots of tournaments. It just made his job easier, as it can yours in competitive matches.

Golf Shop News – November 2014

Welcome to the 2014/2015 season! We in the Golf Shop are very excited to let you know about some upcoming events beginning this month. So make sure to mark your calendars!

Ladies Opening Day – Tuesday, November 4th. Come out and kick off the season with us! We will again have both 18 Hole Ladies and 9 Hole Ladies groups each Tuesday throughout the season. Our 18 Holers will begin as early as 8:30 am and our 9 Holers will begin at approximately 2:00 pm each week. Sign-up in the Golf Shop or call us at 239-331-2052. Deadline for sign-up is the Saturday prior to the following week's play by 2 pm and we do ask that players sign up each week to avoid no-shows. So put your name on the list and start enjoying some friendly competition among your fellow members! TPC Treviso Bay Handicap required.

Men's Opening Day – Wednesday, November 5th. We are planning so new and exciting formats so the more, the merrier! Men's Day players will begin as early at 8:30 am each Wednesday throughout the season. We ask that players sign-up each week and the deadline for Men's Day is the Sunday prior to the following week's play by 2 pm. Sign-up in the Golf Shop or call us at 239-331-2052. TPC Treviso Bay Handicap required

Warm-Up Clinics – We will again be offering our famous and complimentary Warm-Up Clinics in November!! These are FREE instructional clinics for any and all of our members who are interested. Watch for email blasts and/or postings in the Golf Shop for dates and times and sign-up in the Golf Shop or call us at 239-331-2052.

As in past seasons, players must possess a valid USGA handicap within the Treviso Bay handicap system and have a minimum of 10 scores posted to be eligible to play in any club-run golf event. Should you have any questions about any of the above events, or any other golf-related subjects, please don't hesitate to contact me via email at jmurray@theiconteam.com or in the Golf Shop at the number below. Thank you! J
