Organizing a Successful Golf Outing

Once you have chosen Eagle Hills or Tara Hills Golf Courses as the site for your golf event, our goal is to make the process as simple as possible for you. The following information is a collection of ideas gathered from our vast experience in conducting group outings and tournaments.

- Begin planning your event well in advance, a minimum of at least eight weeks prior to your scheduled date should be allowed in most cases.
- Be aggressive in marketing your event. Creating flyers and sign-up sheets are simple methods you can use to not only promote your event, but keep you organized, as well. Keep in constant contact with prospective players through e-mail, direct mail, facebook, and personal phone calls, just to name a few.
- Set your participation deadline at least two weeks before your final player list is to be submitted to the Golf Shop. This will allow you a full week to organize your foursomes, and notify players of their tee times.
- Stress to players the importance of arriving at least thirty minutes before their scheduled starting time. Participants should allow themselves sufficient time to check in, make purchases, practice, and make it to his/her designated starting point five minutes ahead of time.
- Encourage participants to prepay for the outing. This will enable you to devote your time exclusively to player check-in the day of the event.
- Try and do something unique for participants so they will remember the day and look forward to your next outing. This can be as simple as providing players with beverage tickets, golf balls, or a special meal created and catered by our Food & Beverage staff.
- Focus on making the day a social event. Try to avoid situations promoting a highly competitive atmosphere. Best ball and scramble formats are more enjoyable than individual stroke play for most players. The Professional Staff at Eagle Hills and Tara Hills will be happy to offer additional suggestions as to how to keep your outing fun for everyone.
- *Provide products with your corporate logo or organization's name. This is an excellent promotional tool, giving players a souvenir to remember the day. For details, ask the tournament coordinators about our Corporate Logo Program.
